

England Voices Objection To U. S. of Europe Plan

Pan-European Idea All Right, But Methods Ad- vocated by France Fail To Meet Accord.

LONDON, July 17.—(P)—Parliamentary objections to Aristide Briand's scheme of a European federal union, often referred to as the United States of Europe, were advanced in the British reply which was made public tonight.

The British government joined issue with the French scheme chiefly in connection with the methods proposed by the French government for the realization of the Pan-European idea.

The British reply was stated to be merely of a preliminary and tentative character, for the Briand scheme demands "careful, prolonged consideration," and the British government feels it its duty to undertake that consideration in consultation with the dominions.

Nevertheless, the document says his majesty's government understands the Briand scheme as being designed to promote closer co-operation between the nations of Europe, and to strengthen the safeguards against another European war.

With this aim, the document says, the British government is in fullest sympathy, as also with the French view that such co-operation can be obtained primarily in respect to economic relations.

It is in connection with the methods proposed by the French government for the realization of its purpose that the British government differs with the Briand scheme.

The reply states that if Great Britain understood the scheme correctly, it proposes to set up "new and independent international institutions," the British government is not convinced that this course is "either necessary or desirable."

These new bodies, the reply points out, "would in any way derive their authority from the covenant of the League of Nations or from part 13 of the Treaty of Versailles, and would in no way be organically connected with the League of Nations."

"Since the organs of the league have already begun work on virtually the whole of the program of practical realization, the memorandum puts forward," the reply continues, "it is difficult to see how these new European institutions could operate without creating confusion and perhaps also a rivalry which, however little it might be intended or desired by the European governments, could lead to a diminution of the efficiency and the authority of the organs of the league."

The British government, moreover, according to its reply, thinks it possible that an exclusion and independent European union of the kind proposed may emphasize or create tendencies to inter-continental rivalries. In this connection, it is pointed out, there are special considerations of which his majesty's government must take account in the united kingdom as a member of the British commonwealth of nations.

The reply concludes by expressing the belief that the purpose of the French government can be secured effectively within the framework of the League of Nations. It hopes the French government will think it desirable that the memorandum be placed on the agenda of the next assembly of the league.

20 GOVERNMENTS NOW ON RECORD.

PARIS, July 17.—(P)—Twenty European governments by tonight had expressed to France their views on Foreign Minister Briand's proposal for a Pan-American federation.

Of the 26 governments asked in a questionnaire to discuss the feasibility of such a union, nearly every respondent had voiced general acceptance on the idea in principle but had made a number of reservations.

The twentieth reply to arrive was the British. Its contents were made known by press dispatches from London indicating that the British answer, while non-committal on the matter of ways and means, would at the same time express a desire to collaborate in a further study of the possibilities of such a federation.

Despite the reservations expressed by most of the governments questioned, French official circles tonight considered that no obstacles to a closer European union had been revealed that could not be overcome at the conference table.

In fact, two of the three most serious reservations, it was pointed out, had already been discounted in Briand's memorandum.

These two reservations were to the effect that the proposed federation must not clash with the League of Nations, and that it must not be inimical to the interests of other continents.

A third reservation, namely, the German and Italian desire for a revision of the treaties which ended the World War, raised a problem, it was felt here, that must be solved but that must not necessarily be a bar to a European union.

Another disturbing element was the idea expressed by Italy, Germany, and several other nations that Russia and Turkey must be invited to join the proposed union.

French opinion for the moment is inclined to be skeptical of any such arrangement. But again it was felt that this is merely another problem that may be ironed out at Geneva.

The 20 governments which have replied thus far include all the major powers questioned. The six nations whose replies are still awaited are the Irish Free State, Luxembourg, U. S. S. R., Switzerland, Yugoslavia, Greece, and Bulgaria.

CITY SEEKS TITLE TO STONE MOUNTAIN

the properties necessary to this project are placed unconditionally and without burden in the city of Atlanta.

"4. We call upon the Stone Mountain Confederate Monument Association and the Venable family to take such action as is necessary to place the title to this property and the properties necessary for its development and enjoyment in the city of Atlanta without condition and without burden."

"5. With these conditions met, we pledge to the people of the south and of the country as a whole that everything that could reasonably be required of the people of this city shall be done in order to achieve the results that are so earnestly desired."

Resolved further that his honor, the mayor, appoint a committee composed of members of council and citizens of Atlanta, and of such number as he may determine to secure for the city of Atlanta the Stone Mountain property necessary for this development."

Keys Offers Plan.

The letter of Mayor-elect Key to Councilman Moore is as follows: "Pursuant to our conversation with reference to the Stone Mountain Confederate monument, I beg to submit the following as expressing in brief my feeling and attitude on this subject."

"The Stone Mountain project presents the opportunity of building the greatest monument in the world. There is no other place where this greatest monument can or will be built, and there is no other body of people in whom is such an overwhelming sentiment that could bring such a monument to pass."

"The proposed movement to build this monument has reached a standstill, which unless properly relieved, spells utter failure and in setting forth this conclusion I do not assume in any way to pass on the actions of any other people, nor to ferret out just what the causes of failure are. I am looking at it in the terms of a proposed public achievement which has been defeated."

"The city of Atlanta and its people must assume in large part the responsibility of this failure. The people of this city in large part assumed the leadership in this movement which has failed. The people interested would charge that failure to this city. Naturally and logically so, because of the proximity of this city to the monument, and because of the direct and immediate benefit to the city, and it is up to the people of this city to avert this disaster if it can be done."

"In contemplating the possibility of reviving the movement it is necessary to consider the fact that the public confidence in the movement is at present well nigh destroyed. The confidence of the public must be restored, and in order to do this, the whole project will have to be taken entirely out of the field of controversy and be placed in a position where the controversies that have arisen in the past could not arise and could not disturb the carrying out of the project."

"It is to be taken for granted at the outset that this monument shall not be built out of public taxes. Such structure would not be a monument at all. If this be a monument in spirit as well as fact, it must come as a splendid tribute out of the hearts of a noble people. It must be a tribute to courage, heroism, fidelity, self-sacrifice and all of the nobler virtues. The monument should be built out of contributions which come from the hearts of a great people."

"In contemplating a movement to revive this project we should lay aside all of the prejudices, controversies and animosities of the past. 'Not only should they be laid aside, they should be entirely forgotten. There is probably but one man who has the genius and the power of leadership that is necessary to build this monument, and that man is Gutzon Borglum."

"There is in connection with this proposed development, another development that fits in with the same logically, and will be one of the great public developments that has ever been conceived, and the possibility of attainment in my opinion lies just before us. That project includes the development of Kennesaw mountain, the scene of a great conflict; the national cemetery at Marietta, the Battle of Peachtree creek immediately north of the city of Atlanta, and Stone Mountain with this great Confederate monument, with a great national highway connecting these two points, and a great national park commemorating the Battle of Peachtree creek. I believe that with the organization of a great band of men and women who are inspired by such an ideal, with all of the influence of our community and its government, and all other government facilities brought to bear, that the realization of this dream would be made to come true."

"The thing that should be first done in an effort to bring this ideal to pass is to place the title of this property, and such property as is necessary, unconditionally in the city of Atlanta, free from all burdens and handicaps of every character. If this is done, I should like to co-operate with all the power and influence that I have to help bring this to pass. I should like to see you introduce in city council a resolution asking that this property be conveyed to the city of Atlanta absolutely and unconditionally.

"Of course, this property could be condemned for park purposes, but that immediately plunges it into the field of controversy again, and as long as controversy rages about this development, all efforts to revive the plan had carry on the work will be futile."

ICE PROBES FAIL TO SHOW COMBINE

strails, and that his main objective was "to rehabilitate the company."

The witness, under interrogation by Mr. Mayson, declared that he knew of no "understanding" between the various local ice concerns which led to the increase in price of the delivered price of ice from 40 to 60 cents per hundredweight. He said that it cost his company $3.28 to produce a ton of ice and that although the Atlantic, with the City Consumers' Ice Company, were under contract to sell virtually their entire output to the City Delivery Company at the rate of $5 per ton, they had never received the price of ice from 40 to 60 cents per hundredweight. He said that he had not been able to operate with profit which would permit such payment.

Under questioning by Chairman Barrett and Alderman G. Everett Millican, member of the committee, the Atlantic president said that he was a director in the City Ice Delivery Company. He said that no one in the distributing concern except himself directly concerned with the sale of ice draws a salary. Mr. Mayson brought out that the Atlantic Ice and Coal Company owns approximately 63 per cent of the stock in the delivery concern.

Behind in Payments.

Mr. Bensley of his own volition stated that he had called the members of the City Ice Delivery Company together shortly before the price of ice was raised, and had told them that "we cannot continue to sell our ice to the City Ice Delivery Company." He said he gave as the reason for this statement the fact that the delivery concern was behind in its payments for ice, and that the delivery company itself had operated at a loss of $108,000 during the first six months of this year.

"For that reason," he said, "I insisted that something be done—that we should raise the price to a fair scale in keeping with the average price all over the United States."

"I personally want to deny," Mr. Bensley asserted, "any affiliation with any other company in the city of Atlanta, save for the City Ice Delivery Company."

He defended the delivery company's organization and existence as "an economic, beneficial agency of distribution."

Price to Peddlers.

Councilman Barrett and Alderman Millican attempted at several junctures to pin the testimony to the practice of local ice companies of charging peddlers a higher price than wholesale consumers to whom they make actual deliveries. During the testimony of Mr. Cochran Mr. Barrett asked:

"Isn't it a fact that you charge city peddlers more because you want to drive them out of business?"

"No," answered the ice representative. "It's because the large wholesaler has an all-year-round customer, while the peddler is only a part-time proposition."

At another time, when Mr. Hancock was on the stand, the chairman asked in reference to the same matter:

"Then, isn't it because that you really would like to avoid selling any ice at all to the retail consumer—that class of consumer you don't want to sell to?"

Mr. Hancock hastily interjected: "I wouldn't say that."

Previously the trend of testimony had been intended to show that the burden of the loss to ice companies is in the delivery of their product to the household user. This contention was met at frequent intervals by Mr. Mayson and members of the committee who propounded a hypothetical question of whether the companies couldn't sell their ice to the delivery companies which in turn could sell it to the small retail trade at a price of 50 cents per hundredweight, "and still make a reasonable profit." Witnesses declared that in their opinion, no profit could be gleaned from such a price.

Delivery Company.

The City Ice Delivery Company, it was brought out during the meeting, was organized with the Atlantic Ice and Coal Company as principal stockholder, and the City Consumers' Ice Company and the Diamond Ice Company as the other members. Recently, it was said, the Diamond company has shut down and the City Delivery Company now consists of director and stockholders of the two other companies. Each operates on a contract with the delivery agency, which stipulated the quantity of ice produced by each to be sold to the delivering firm and fixes the price at $5 per ton.

Summed up, the initial session brought forth the fact that the ice manufacturers of Atlanta regard the cause of their alleged operating losses as the problem of efficient delivery to the household consumer; that they readily admit delivering ice to "big wholesale consumers" at prices ranging from $4 to $5 per ton and that the delivered price to the large consumer is placed below that to peddlers who buy ice on company platforms; and that even at 60 cents per hundredweight the larger concerns will operate at a loss this year.

BOTH IN WRONG

Cases Against Driver of Auto and Pedestrian He Hit.

Cases were made against both the driver of a vehicle and the pedestrian he struck, Thursday night, as the result of an accident in front of 983 McDonough boulevard.

Herman Ensley, 21, of 9 Aston avenue, was given treatment at Grady hospital early Thursday night, for slight injuries received when he was struck by an automobile operated by J. H. Bentley, of 1327 DeKalb avenue. On release from the hospital a case of jay-walking was made against him by Call Officers Luke Ratledge and Jack Wingate, who previously made a case of reckless driving against Bentley.

Mr. Hancock hastily interjected: "I wouldn't say that."

This contention was met at frequent intervals by Mr. Mayson and members of the committee who propounded a hypothetical question of whether the companies couldn't sell their ice to the delivery companies which in turn could sell it to the small retail trade at a price of 50 cents per hundredweight, "and still make a reasonable profit." ## Birmingham Woman Dies in 6-Story Fall

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., July 17.—(P)—Mrs. Ada H. E. Camp, about 65 years old, early today either jumped or fell to her death from a sixth floor window of a fashionable downtown apartment.

A watchman found her body shortly after her leap or fall, after being called to her room by a sister who had been frightened by the woman's reputed statement that she was going to commit suicide.

Mrs. Camp, a widow, was the manager of the apartment house. Her sister, so far as is known, is the only survivor.

Saunders Planning Another Chain System

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 17.—(P)—Two days after one of his grocery store chains went into bankruptcy, Clarence Saunders announced this morning that he plans to inaugurate a new system, based on "new ideas" which he would not divulge in detail. Saunders originated the self-service grocery store with the Piggly-Wiggly chain, carried it on in the Saunders stores after he lost the former in 1923 and said today his new stores will be the culmination of the ideas used in his earlier projects. He said detailed announcements would come later.

The Clarence Saunders Stores, Inc., operating 153 of his groceries, went into bankruptcy Tuesday. He said 327 others licensed to other operating companies are not involved.

Plagiarism Action Faces Zane Grey

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(P)—A $500,000 plagiarism suit against Zane Grey, author, was being heard in federal court here today. The suit was brought by Charles A. Maddux, who charged Grey's novel, "The Thundering Herd," was based on a story written in 1907 by the late John H. Cook, buffalo hunter. Maddux sued under an assignment from Cook's widow by which he obtained the rights to the pioneer's book.

wonderful medicine before I'd gained ten pounds and my whole system seemed filled with new strength and energy," recently stated Mrs. Mattie Standard, 145 Fair St., S. E., Atlanta.

"I was so nervous I couldn't stand for the children to play in the house; and at night if I couldn't compose myself by reading I'd just have to pace the floor. My appetite was very poor—just a c.p. of coffee would satisfy it, and what I forced myself to eat would put me in misery with indigestion. My kidneys seemed affected and there was almost a constant pain and feeling of weakness in my back."

"Since I took Sargon my appetite is wonderful, and I never have the slightest trouble with my stomach. My kidneys and nerves are worlds better!"

"My liver was doing its work so poorly I was subject to terrible dizzy spells; but Sargon Pills have completely overcome this trouble for me. These pills act just like nature itself, and they're equally as wonderful as Sargon."

Sargon may be obtained in all Jacobs' Pharmacies.—(adv.)

Piles Go Quick

Without Salves or Cutting

"Thousands of Pile sufferers have learned that quick and permanent relief can only be accomplished with internal medicine. Neither cutting nor any amount of treatment with ointments and suppositories will remove the cause.

Bad circulation causes piles. There is a complete stagnation of blood in the lower bowel and a weakening of the parts.

Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, after years of study, discovered a real internal Pile remedy and called his prescription HEM-ROID. He prescribed it for 1,000 patients with the marvelous record of success in 900 cases, and then decided every Pile sufferer should be able to get HEM-ROID from their own drugist with a rigid money-back guarantee.

Dr. Leonhardt's prescription has a wonderful record of success right in this city and Jacobs' Pharmacy invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID and guarantees to refund the purchase price if it does not end all Pile misery.—(adv.)

ROAD TO PEACE SEEN IN TROUBLED INDIA

Moderate Leaders Ask for Undisturbed Conference With Gandhi.

SIMLA, India, July 17.—(AP)—A dramatic request to the viceroy by two influential moderate leaders, Sir Tej Bahadur Sapru and Mr. Jayakar, may mark the most important step yet taken upon the road to peace since the civil resistance campaign of Mahatma Gandhi began.

The request, as revealed by publication here tonight of correspondence between the two statesmen and the viceroy, is that Lord Irwin should allow Sapru and Jayakar to see the Mahatma in jail, "without there being any officer of the government present at the interview, in order to persuade him to help restore normal conditions."

The two leaders said they were "alive to the dangers of the civil disobedience movement, but we feel that in a contest between the people and the government which had involved adoption of a policy of repression and consequent embitterment of popular feeling the true and abiding interests of the country are apt to be sacrificed."

In his reply Lord Irwin reaffirmed his belief that the civil disobedience program is doing great harm to India, he stated that it was the government's intention to oppose it by all means within its power but that nevertheless if Sapru and Jayakar think they can "do anything toward restoration of normal conditions," it would not be right for him nor the government to oppose them.

The viceroy added that he would ask the local governments concerned to "issue the necessary instruction to the local governments concerned which will enable you to make your public spirited attempt in the cause of India."

Goldsborough Sensed Disaster, Incident Shows

TONAWANDA, N. Y., July 17.—(AP)—Frank Goldsborough, 19-year-old aviator who plunged to death in his plane on a mountainside in Vermont on Monday, had a premonition of impending disaster, Herbert Zettell said today.

Goldsborough had been staying in Tonawanda for several weeks while alterations were being made in his plane by the Consolidated Aircraft Corporation, whose airport is located near this city. On Monday he flew his plane over to Buffalo, preparatory to flying to Keene, N. H. A number of friends, including Zettell, went to the airport to see him off.

The young aviator climbed into his plane, carrying "Contact," a tiny white dog which he took with him on flights as a mascot. He dropped Contact inside the bosom of his flying suit and waved to his friends. Then he climbed again from the cockpit and walked over to Zettell, drawing the dog from inside his suit he handed it to Zettell with the casual remark:

"Keep Contact for me, will you? I've got a feeling something is going to happen."

'Standing' of Atlanta On Total of 359,688

Atlanta's place as twenty-second among American cities, a gain from thirty-third place as shown in the 1920 census ten years ago, is based on a population of 359,688, the figure announced here by Dr. Elizabeth Bronch several weeks ago. Washington has not yet announced the official final total for the city of Atlanta and Atlanta's Thursday were hoping that these figures would reach 400,000, a 4,000 gain over the early total, so that Atlanta could pass both Seattle and Indianapolis, these cities having a total of slightly more than 368,000.

LISBON POLICE FOIL PLOT OF INSURGENTS

Arrests Follow Alleged Plan To Overthrow Administration.

LISBON, Portugal, July 17.—(UN)—The police said they had discovered a plot to overthrow the administration today, and proceeded to arrest a number of persons formerly high up in military and political circles in the regime headed by Jose Almeida.

Former Premier Cardoso, Captain Augusto Casimiro, formerly of the republic guard, and others already have been arrested and the round-up continued.

The police recently arrested Plinio Silva, former minister of commerce, in connection with the rumored plot. The arrests tonight had totaled between 25 and 50 persons, some erstwhile of high posts. The plot was said to be entirely devoid of monarchial ramifications, the leaders being politicians of constitutional inclinations.

The police had learned that former Premier Jose Domingos De Santos, exiled in Paris, had returned secretly. Searching for him, they raided the residence of Colonel Alva Eopope at Lisbon, and Alberto Tota at Praia Das Maens, but De Santos had fled.

The editor of the Republica was among those arrested. The prisoners have been taken aboard the frigate Dom Fernando, anchored in the Tagus river. The principal prisoners will be transferred to the gunboat Tamaga for deportation.

The captain of the Tamaga was seen sealed orders regarding the destination, which was believed to be the Azores.

Troops were held in readiness in barracks in Lisbon tonight.

Stimson Saves Aged Negro U.S. Employee's Job

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(AP)—Secretary Stimson took a hand today in saving the job of an aged negro, "Eddie" Savoy, an employee of the state department for 33 years, who knows and is known by diplomats from one end of the world to the other.

While the bent and grizzled negro sat in the chair he has held for 20 years outside the secretary of state's door, Stimson himself made a hurried trip to the civil service commission.

He returned to say the commission had been prevailed upon to allow the department's chief messenger to retain his place for another year on the grounds of expert qualifications and knowledge.

"Eddie" already has served four years beyond his retirement age, the limit allowed under the new civil service law.

Numerous legends have woven about him during the nearly three score years he has served the department. Diplomats in far countries can testify concerning his uncanny recollection of names and faces.

Recently, a former ambassador, absent from the department for 20 years, heard himself greeted by name from the messenger's desk as he stepped off the elevator in front of Secretary Stimson's office. Others who have served for years abroad likewise have met instant recognition upon their infrequent returns to the state department.

Born in 1855, "Eddie" entered the service of the government on July 1, 1871. He has been chief messenger since 1901, and has been called by his first name by secretaries of state for more than three decades.

Mrs. C. B. Goodwin Found Dead in Bed

Mrs. Carrie Belle Goodwin, 30, was found dead in bed early Thursday morning at her residence, 26 Fair street, S. E., and services will be conducted at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon from the chapel of Ed Bond and Condon, with the Rev. A. L. Flury officiating. Interment will be in West View cemetery.

According to members of the family Mrs. Goodwin had been in ill health for about two weeks. She was the widow of J. W. Goodwin and is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Allie Barber; four brothers, R. L. and Grover Johnson, of Atlanta, and S. W. and Paul H. Johnson, of Statesboro; her mother, Mrs. L. V. Johnson, and two grandchildren, LaMance and LaRoe Barber.

Three Reds to Receive Party Honor in Jail

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)—Three communist leaders who are serving sentences on Welfare Island for instigating a riot in Union Square March 6, will be visited by a party committee tomorrow and informed formally of their nomination for state offices on the communist ticket.

The three are William Z. Foster, candidate for governor; Robert Minor, candidate for representative from the twentieth congressional district, and Israel Amer, candidate for representative from the twenty-third district.

Woman Detective Is Found Murdered

SAUGUS, Mass., July 17.—(AP)—Miss Edith Thompson, 31, an investigator for private detective agencies, was found beaten to death at her home here today. Her body was found in the sun porch of her flat and there was evidence that the woman had struggled before she had been overcome.

Miss Thompson, a divorced Mrs. Wright who had resumed her maiden name, had left her automobile in front of her home Tuesday. Neighbors noticed it and when they failed to appear today police were notified. Police forced their way into the flat and found the body.

Friends of the dead woman told the police that she had been employed as a detective in Boston department stores for 25 years but eight years ago severed her connections. Since then she has been operating in Worcester, Albany, N. Y., and Syracuse, N. Y., devoting most of her attention to securing evidence in alienation of affections suits.

Jones Praises Rise in Government Cost

WASHINGTON, July 17.—(UN)—President Hoover was praised as "economical" and "honest" and increased White House expenditures of $81,000 this year were held necessary by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, chairman of the senate appropriations committee, in a radio speech tonight.

Jones said the president of Cuba and the executive head of the Canadian government both were housed more luxuriously than the United States president. The president's increased help should have been provided before, he added.

Analyzing appropriations for this year, he said the cost of running the government, outside of expenses for post and future wars was only $1,200,000,000. War expenses such as pensions, army and navy, and national debt payments, make up 70 per cent of the total of more than $4,800,000,000 appropriated for this year, he said.

He defended the tax reforms made by the government as fair.

Effort To Escape Costs Boy 8 Years

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—A few minutes of dazed liberty today cost Louis Goza, former Kansas City youth, eight years of freedom.

He had just been convicted on a charge of safe-cracking along with a gang of eight others in superior court here.

Judge Walter Moore pronounced his sentence—12 to 24 years in the state's penitentiary at Raleigh—and Goza rose abruptly from his chair dashed to a window and flung himself out.

The drop from the second-story dazed him for he was unable to jump a fence near-by which might have meant safety. He was captured.

He was returned before Judge Moore who said: "Young man, wish I could hang you for this."

Goza replied: "I wish so, too. I'd rather be hanged than serve 12 years in the penitentiary."

Judge Moore increased the sentence to 20 to 30 years.

Fulton Medical Society Frowns on Fresh Milk Ban

Resolutions Disapprove Proposed Ordinance Against Retailing of Grade A Milk.

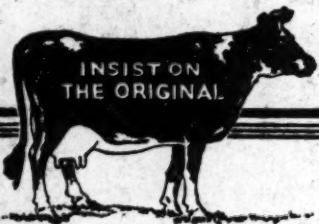

Disapproval of the proposed ordinance which would prohibit the sale of fresh Grade A milk in grocery stores, drug stores, public drinking places, or other places where milk is sold, was expressed Thursday night by the Fulton County Medical Society in resolutions adopted at the regular meeting in the Academy of Medicine.

The proposed ordinance is to be given a public hearing this afternoon by the sanitary committee of council. It has been adopted by council, but was reconsidered and referred to the committee. Members of the Georgia Pure Milk League several days ago moved to fight the ordinance, and will be represented at today's hearing.

Offered by Dr. E. C. Thrash, the resolution met with opposition and a counter proposal that the matter be held in abeyance until the return to the city of Dr. J. P. Kennedy, city health officer, and that the council committee be requested to hold the matter up until then. This proposal lost by a vote of 22 to 23, and the resolution presented by Dr. Thrash then carried.

There was considerable discussion of the virtues of Grade A milk as against those of pasteurized milk. The Grade A milk supporters declared that pasteurization kills certain necessary vitamins, and that pasteurization as commonly practiced today is not the real method, but allows just as much chance for getting a high bacteria count as the bottling of Grade A, raw milk. Atlanta is not situated as in New York, where milk is hauled hundreds of miles before it reaches the consumer, and the necessity for pasteurization here is not as great as in New York, it was pointed out. The resolution points out that "the majority of the public is averse to drinking milk that has been boiled, or so-called pasteurized," and that Grade A milk properly produced is not in anywise dangerous to health and is more nutritious than boiled or so-called pasteurized milk," and that "many of our citizens depend for their milk upon business places, as milk depots, grocery stores, drug stores, and drinking fountains, having no other convenient way of procuring their milk."

DISCOVERY OF BODY ENDS GRAHAM SEARCH

Corpse of Missing Air Mail Pilot Found Near Plane.

LOS ANGELES, July 17.—(AP)—Maurice Graham, who survived the hazards of World War aviation and then flew 180,000 miles over the air mail route between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City without ever being blizzared out of which he had safely brought his plane.

The story of Graham's end in the mountains of southwestern Utah was reported to Western Air Express officials here today as searchers prepared to bring the body out of the wilderness in which it has lain since last January 11.

Graham left here the night of January 10 with a load of mail. En route to Salt Lake City he learned a blizzard lay across his path but, he said, died in the teeth of a mountain fust to stop.

Residents of St. George, Utah, heard his plane late that night and assumed he was going to land. Snow which obscured the lights on the landing field there apparently prevented him from coming down and he went on into the blizzard which took his life.

One of the longest searches in the history of air mail flying followed when he failed to reach Salt Lake City. Not until June 24 was the plane found. It was only slightly damaged and the mail was intact. Graham had spent more than 400 hours in the air. He was one of the four original pilots on the Los Angeles-Salt Lake City line, and had flown that route continuously since its establishment in 1926. He was considered one of the best air mail pilots in the United States.

Graham received his training at San Diego, Cal.; Fort Sill, Okla.; Fort Worth, Texas, and overseas. He joined the army June 28, 1917, and served at the front with the fifth aero squadron and also with the American army of occupation after the armistice.

Argonne forest and dropping carrier pigeons and supplies to the famous "lost" battalion. He was officially credited with bringing down one enemy balloon and had two citations. After the war Graham flew from Germany to England, Scotland and Ireland and back to France. He was born in Indianapolis 32 years ago and was married. Mrs. Graham and two children, twins eight years old, live in Hollywood.

CLOTURE RULE HANGS AS THREAT IN SENATE

we did was to scrap our program and accept the British program."

Less Time.

Meanwhile, the state department issued a statement saying the Washington treaty of 1922 was ratified within much less time than the London pact has required already.

"It is already 86 days since this treaty was signed in London," it said. "The Washington naval treaty only occupied 52 days between the date of signature and the consent to ratification by the senate."

"This treaty was before the foreign relations committee for 63 days while the Washington treaty was before the foreign relations committee only 17 days. To date this treaty has been debated before the senate through 49 1-2 hours of session. The Washington treaty was debated for only eight hours of session."

Senator Watson accused the opposition today of "killing time." Senator Robinson, republican, Indiana, an opponent of the pact, disputed this. Watson replied that yesterday one senator spoke for the express purpose of "killing time until another senator can return to the city." Robinson did not challenge this.

Pointing out that debate was nearing the close of the second week, Watson said if the agreement to limit discussion after next Tuesday were entered into it would still leave only opponents three full days for discussion in addition to the time they already have consumed. But Johnson would not listen.

"I know of no other way to fight for my country except to die," shouted the Californian in reply to the threat of cloture. "This great majority here can do just exactly as it pleases. I will protect what rights I have as best I can. Put on your cloture. The only time we use it is in foreign adventure or misadventure. I make no agreement. I go on as best I can."

Use Opposed.

Many treaty advocates have urged against the use of the cloture, anxious to avoid the cry of " gag" from the opposition. However, the senate is plainly getting restless over the extended debate. Senator McKellar has spoken almost every day, using six hours during the last two days.

Senator Johnson pointed to the Pacific as the future "theater of world activities" and asserted the treaty carried the germ which would destroy United States defenses.

He lashed out at those who would call the treaty opponents "jingoists" and asked if men who spoke only in favor of Great Britain or for Japan were to receive an ear.

He said the state department has sent throughout the treaty in franked envelopes while the speeches he had mailed out against the pact had been sent at his own expense.

Johnson submitted one of the resolutions offered today. He proposed to reserve right for the United States to build all 18 eight-inch gun cruisers allowed under the treaty within the life of the pact. Under the agreement, three of the cruisers could not be completed until after the treaty expires. Some could be completed the day following expiration of the treaty.

Senator McKellar offered a new batch of reservations. He proposed that if any signatory nation violates the Kollatz peace pact, the naval treaty shall become inoperative. Another reservation would force any nation going to war in violation of the Kollatz pact to distribute $1,000,000,000 among the other nations. He also proposed that nations agree to limit the number of merchantmen which might be convertible into ships of war.

Senator Hale, republican, Maine, the chairman of the naval committee, also notified the senate he would propose a reservation stipulating that the American navy reserved its previous policy of the right to build ships without regard to categories within the tonnage limitations.

A marine relief party which went to the assistance of the stricken plane after reports of the crash had been received found that the machine had smashed on a hillside. The men were making a daily aerological flight. Both bodies were found in the cockpit of the plane which had been smashed in. Pounders apparently had died instantly, while Martin, mortally injured, appeared to have died soon afterward.

COLT SERVED DURING WORLD WAR. COLT, Ark., July 17.—(AP)—James Pounders, brother of Walter Lee Pounders, marine airplane pilot killed yesterday in Nicaragua, was notified of the death today by the Associated Press, and said the body will be returned to this rural town for burial if the family or the United States government can arrange it.

Pounders, a farmer, said his brother joined the marine corps 13 years ago at the age of 20. He served during the World War at an Azores Island station. Since then his brother said, he had enlisted regularly and learned to fly while in the corps.

The aviator was ordered to Nicaragua about a year ago. His last visit to his home here occurred three years ago. His brother is the only immediate survivor.

"He always did like to hear about the marines," he said. "When he got a chance he joined and liked it so well he stayed in."

It is his wish that the son he hasn't seen in nearly two decades shall inherit it. But, first, he has set out to find him. To this end he has sought the aid of the press and the radio.

So far as he knows, his wife never obtained a divorce, nor has he divorced her. He believes Mrs. Cochran dead.

And he thinks that, after leaving him, she took another name, probably one of her family names, Peppers or Lawings. It is under one of those names that he expects to find his son—if he does find him.

San Francisco, July 17.—(AP)—Several hundred fire fighters, weary from combatting brush, grass and timber fires in scattered localities on the Pacific coast, today stood watch lest hard won control should be lost.

At least one fire fighter lost his life. Hugh Avery, 20, of Mesa, Ariz., died last night of burns received when he was trapped fighting a blaze burning through brush toward the Mount Hamilton, Pasadena, home of relatives he was visiting.

Thunderstorms came to the aid of fire fighters in the mountains of eastern San Diego county, rains putting out several small brush blazes and ending the fire menace at least temporarily.

In Kern county, California, a fire which had been controlled broke out again, spread over 4,000 acres of brush and grazing land, but finally was checked.

A blaze in Happy Valley, Shasta county, was under control after having swept over several thousands acres of pasture and scrub timber. In neighboring Trinity county efforts of 600 inhabitants of the settlement of Hayfork to save their home from a fire appeared successful when the wind suddenly subsided.

Nearly 800 men were holding back three fires in the Deschutes section of central Oregon.

TWO MARINES KILLED IN AIRPLANE CRASH

Aerological Flight in Nicaragua Is Fatal to Pair.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, July 17.—(AP)—Walter Lee Pounders, U. S. marine gunner and pilot, and Chalmers Lewis Martin, United States marine aerologist, were killed while making an aerological flight ten miles south of Managua yesterday.

Pounders came from Colt, Ark., and his next of kin was given as his brother, James S. Pounders. Martin came from Marlow, Ohio. His next of kin was given as his mother, Mrs. Sadie Martin.

The cause of the accident was not known here.

A marine relief party which went to the assistance of the stricken plane after reports of the crash had been received found that the machine had smashed on a hillside. The men were making a daily aerological flight.

Both bodies were found in the cockpit of the plane which had been smashed in. Pounders apparently had died instantly, while Martin, mortally injured, appeared to have died soon afterward.

King Alfonso Is Involved In Motor Mishap

LONDON, July 17.—(AP)—King Alfonso, of Spain, was involved in a slight motor collision as he was being driven to Buckingham palace today to lunch with King George and Queen Mary.

At Hyde Park corner, the king's car and another driven by a woman, collided. One of the bumpers on the king's car was damaged and the glass panel separating the chauffeur from the king's compartment was smashed. The Spanish monarch and a companion were unhurt and proceeded after a few minutes delay.

Alfonso leaped from his motor car immediately after the accident and shook hands in friendly fashion with the woman driver, Mrs. Violet Webster. He told her that he was very sorry the mishap had occurred.

The Spanish ruler handed his card to a police inspector before driving away. A witness of the accident said: "I heard a crash and saw one of the cars, a two-seater, nearly topple over. I thought it was going to overturn but it righted itself. The woman driver was trembling but unhurt."

Examination of the royal car at Buckingham palace showed that apart from a broken panel there was little damage. With the king was the owner of the car, the Marquis of Villa Varga.

Portuguese Leaders Block Another Plot

LISBON, Portugal, July 16.—(AP)—The Portuguese government let it be known today that a plot against the dictatorship of President Carmona has been discovered, and a number of citizens and soldiers arrested.

Complete order prevails in Lisbon.

Less than two weeks ago, the government announced that a revolutionary plot under the leadership of Colonel Joao Almeida, monarchist leader, had been nipped in the bud.

Colonel Almeida and several civilians were arrested. Several Portuguese political groups, including the democrats, who came to power in the 1926 revolution, were implicated in the plot.

GOD'S JUDGMENTS.—And I heard another out of the altar say,
even so, Lord God Almighty, true
and righteous are thy judgments.
—Rev. 16:7.

PRAYER.—Ancient days, who sitteth throned in glory To Thy all knees are bent, all voices pray.

COST OF CENTRALIZATION.

We, the people, can get nothing back by raising and over the five-billion-dollar appropriations made by the congress for the support of our national government. The deed has been done. We elected the congress to handle our money and they have handled it with all the generosity and care-free abandon of drunken sailors.

The big bulging fact comes home
to us that 8 per cent of the total income of the 122,000,000 people who make up the nation is to be paid for the benefits and luxuries of the sort of government we are getting, without counting what state, county and municipal administrations are demanding and taking. It is expertly figured now that every nine persons in the United States are supporting another person
in a government job.

What of it? We are told that we are enjoying the best government on earth at less cost than any other of the major nations of civilization and that we get for our money more and better services than are given to any other people.

The fact is that the great American idea of "mass production" has infected us in the field of national public service. We have been steadily transferring to the general government functions formerly devolved upon individual, local and state powers and resources. We have democratized and nationalized
the general welfare and in the name of "the public good" are building
a vast scheme of administrative centralization.

The process will not stop to satisfy sporadic protests. It grows out of the appetite which inheres in power and the lust all people have
for equality of benefits whose costs
seem to come from a general fund
from which they contribute insensibly.
Five billion dollars is only $41 per capita, or $200 per family, every year—so who cares?

KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT.

Every rational democrat in the nation believes in the protection of American industries and labor. The republicans have no divine right to claim monopoly possession of that principle. But there is a difference as wide as the continent between the democratic doctrine of honest and equitable tariff protection to the industries and the people alike
and the Grundy republican doctrine that the tariff must be used as a political bonus, whereby certain industries are enabled to levy excessive profits upon the people in general.

There was in the past an era
when the larger necessities of the general population argued for freer competition between our producers of the necessities of life and those of other countries with which we maintained reciprocal trade. Even so eminent protectionists as Blaine, McKinley and Tamm leaned strongly to policies of accommodating trade reciprocity.

But we are living now in different world circumstances, industri-ally and commercially, than any
we have before known. The nations of Europe are feverishly restoring their productive industries, necessitated to keep their people at work if only for bare living wages,
and determined to produce goods
the world needs at the lowest costs possible in order to command foreign markets for their outputs. The American market they esteem to be the largest and richest in the world,
and naturally they covet to invade
it as profitably as possible.

That makes it an imperative American policy to prevent our market from becoming a dumping ground for the cheap labor products of foreign factories and labor.

The duty of pursuing that policy

rests as much upon the democrats
as upon the republicans. The latter should not be permitted to pose as the sole champions of protection for American industries and workers.
Time and again the democrats in national convention have announced their intention when in power to conserve adequately our home industries and labor. That pledge must be kept before the people and repeated by every democratic candidate for national office, because it is the righteous policy of honest and equitable American protection
—for the people and not solely for monopolistic profiteers.

It is very desirable that democrats who attack the inequities of the Grundy tariff act should not allow their criticisms to make the impression upon the popular mind
that democratic policy is not favorable to the protection of American industries and labor. They should carefully and plainly demonstrate to the people the vital economic difference between the democratic policy that would equalize tariff benefits and protect the great mass of consumers from extortions that are always suffered under republican-made tariffs dictated by profit-seeking classes of producers. Half a dozen times the thus despoiled people have had to resort to the polls to smash just such grafting tariff acts as the present Grundy-Hoover hijacking act—and all relatable signs are that they are preparing to make November 4 a national slaughter day for this latest and worst republican iniquity.

WHY NOT TO GEORGIA?

It is rather difficult to understand the hope of President Hoover to find rest and recreation by a trip to the wide spaces of the west and the high spots of the Rocky mountains. What relief can he find there from the harassments of the continuous sessions of congress
with which he largely victimized himself?

Rather will not the spectacle of Rocky mountain goats leaping from precipice to precipice make him
imagine he is seeing a mirage of Borah and Moses leap-frogging
the crags of senate legislation?

Will not the moon-gendered laments of the coyotes fill his dreams with nightmares of Norris and Blaine bewailing the approaching damnation of the republic? And will not the geysers remind him of Massachusetts Walsh and Maryland Tydings spouting on the failures of prohibition, while the high waterfalls recall the cata-clysmic contentions of Wesley Jones and Sheppard that Volsteadism is making the victorious march of the ages?

It is perfectly all right with us
if the president thinks a trip out into "the wild and woolly" will be delectable and recuperative. His body and spirit are his own and he can give them what treatment he will, but almost any competent physician or philosopher would probably warn him that a mere change
of visible stunts and vocal scales will not produce the metabolism of congress-crazed into renewed presidential ecstasy.

If President Hoover just will go west instead of coming down to the lovely scenery and climate of northern Georgia, the real "Switzerland of America," our sincerest sympathy will go with him.

EQUAL JUSTICE FOR ALL.

The governor of North Carolina proudly announces that "we have not had a lynching in this state in ten years," and says that record
means "that the state of North Carolina is firmly committed to the protection of its citizens, white and colored, from lawlessness in every form and is both able and willing to exert the power necessary to enforce this policy."

That is a boast which the governor of any state, and especially one in the south, should be proud to publish to the world. In recent years there have been notable advances made in the matter of preventing mob lynchings. For the first half of this year, as we recall, there were but nine lynchings and they were scattered in six southern states.

Officers of the law have shown a new spirit of courage in facing and defeating mobs intent upon taking justice into their own hands.

The people generally are becoming strongly intolerant of the acts of irresponsible crowds of maddened
persons committing brutal and barbaric murders upon captured persons charged with crime and who were either in the law's custody, or convicted if guilty, and summarily executed.

Governor Gardner also calls upon the negroes of the state to consider
"that the white people of this state have realized that there can be no such thing as one system of justice for one race and another for the other." That realization is permeating, as we see it, the people of the entire south and means a coming emulation among them to establish in all their states the basic principle of a democracy—"equal justice for all!"

Carroll and his cohorts were bound over—thereby assuring a continuation of the publicity which is pouring dollars into the producer's exchequer.

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN

Heidelberg Objects.

The action of the German students' corporations in Heidelberg, being being enthusiastic about being asked to act as superiors in a Ufa production dealing with Heidelberg student life, suddenly changed their minds, but would not let them leave where youth and its ideals are taken seriously. The students of Heidelberg are not only fond of films
but interested in their production and very willing to earn a few marks as actors of a day or two only. But when they discovered that the story of all such series do) is a glorified under-line-trace of maidens whose bright eyes were the next important business in life to beer, they protested. Student life of today is not a sentimental romance, but a hard hardship. A few still have money to sit under the trees and dream and drink, but a very few only. Heidelberg students demand a faithful picture of today, and will not lend themselves to any other; so the film producer, in order to get his superiors,
was obliged to resort to local youths who are not students. The public will get the student film it wants and wherever it is shown the bona-fide university man will show the disapproval which he feels.

Paris Fairs.

A student of the character of Parisians has just been gleaming information about them through observing the amusements which they patronize to fairs. He has found that: (1) to the sex instinct; (2) to the gambling spirit; (3) to vanity; and (4) to a sense of adventure. The sex instinct is accounted for by the peep-shows,
and the appetite of the gambler by those public roulette wheels by means of which one may win two pounds or sugar or an ornament for a stake of 25 centimes. Vanity makes a strong appeal for it has been noticed that young men escorting ladies love to display their prowess at shooting galleries by way of proving their accuracy of eye and hand. In this connection, also, the observer notes man's lust for destruction. A man who for a franc or two is able to smash a few clay pipes or bottles set up as targets seems to feel that he has had his money's worth. But then comes the attraction of imitation adventure. The high speeds of switchbacks, water chutes and loop-ing the loop contrivances prove very attractive, while highly organized discomforts provided by the most inconvenient contrivances are also very successful as a source of profit.

Bonfires.

An English clergyman made a plea recently for the restoration of the old custom to light huge bonfires in midsummer, as was the practice in Britain as far back as the Roman period and before that. In Ireland, as late as 1782, midsummer fires were lighted
in honor of the sun, while the positive danger around them was there was a riot in Cork in 1831
when some soldiers refused to subscribe money to the midsummer-bonfire. In Cornwall the custom took a different form. The bonfires men lighted on the coast their "blessing fires" and danced and sang. Maids expected to find their future husbands on Midsummer Day, and the custom of the eve, and at midnight set a table
with bread, cheese and ale, and sat with the door open, hoping for the best. They bowed and bemoaned and singing: "Hemp-seed I sow, let hempseed grow; he that will, my sweetheart let, come after me and now."

FLAXSEED PSYCHOTHERAPY

WORKS VERY WELL IN LONG

DISTANCE PRACTICE.

Pennsylvania writes he enjoys this column and derives much benefit from
it. He writes me that he is a native of Scotland. My Scotch readers may not believe it but I do wish there were more of them among my readers. It is interesting to know that he is a native of Scotland. He substitutes a longer word for a true Scotchman. Of course my Pennsylvania friend may have used the adjective in a humorous way, or he may have meant to give expression to a glad sense of gratitude and liberality
—you know this is a very psychological fact and we must overlook no symbols which betray inner consciousness, emotions, repressed wishes and all that. At any rate this Pennsylvania Dutchman or Swiss or Czech-Slovakian, or whatever he may be,
seems to say that he was badly confused for 16 years. Then a year ago he started using flaxseeds as I had suggested, instead of his regular daily pill, and now he is O. K. He thinks that he is a regular flaxseed user for two or three days successively
his alimentary function requires no further attention for two or three weeks.
Then he has another course of flax-seeds for two or three days, then another two or three weeks of freedom.
By cracker, he doesn't wonder the pill
magicians want my scalp.

Flaxseed psychotherapy does work fairly well in long distance practice, I find. While I know that if I had the victim of the physis habit under my personal control, so that I could withdraw his favorite "regular" flaxseed supply, he would recover as certainly and even more promptly as he does (in a fair proportion of cases) at long distance, but the aid of flaxseeds may readily imagine that after 16 years of interference a victim of the habit far beyond the radius of my personal psychic influence (than just personal) influence will find it hard to believe I am quite right when I assure him (by written or printed word) that no evil whatsoever can befall him if he suddenly quits his regular flaxseed habit. He is a "dangerous business." Haven't his parents and grandparents been taught the same morbid fancies all their lives? Haven't the pill magicians and the entire physis habit of the untutored or half-educated layman that health depends on "regulation of the bowels"? Not likely that my feeble contradiction of this traditional teaching will be heard or heeded by any considerable proportion of the population at this late day. So I ring in flaxseeds.

By cracker, they do listen to flax-seeds. Yes, and a few of them, more courageous than the mob, even "try"
the flaxseed method. Many would like to, but they are frightened by old fossil doctors who believe all their read in the paid announcements in the kept medical press.

Flaxseeds serve to intrigue—that's the proper word—the victim, to hold

LOOKING AND LISTENING

BY SAM W. SMALL

Random Recollections of War-Time Days
in Lovely Old Georgia.

It was distinctly hard luck that kept me away from Griffin on Wednesday when the fine people who include me were celebrating the city's ninetieth birthday. I was in Tennessee, who had been a candidate for president of the United States in 1890
would come out and watch the maneuvers. He was a refugee in Griffin at the time. He was a dignified old cock who wore conventional statesman's garb and always walked the field with his hands clasped behind his back.

General John C. Brown, of Tennessee, afterwards governor of the state, was of course the star of the show. Atlanta and married a mighty sweet
young woman refugee from Memphis.
We made a gala day in the city for the wedding.

Captain C. Tarbert brought the Bank of Tennessee to Griffin for the safe-keeping of its assets. He was the father of our long-time Atlanta business man.

Hair-Raising Ride on Hill Street.

As the war heightened and closed in upon us Griffin became a crowded hospital center for our southern wounded and sick. Among them were a number of the cavalymen of General John H. Morgan, who was then in prison in the hands of the federal army, confined in the penitentiary at Columbus, Ohio.

In Griffin at the time was a printer named H. J. Swazey, who claimed to be a German alien and exempt from military service. He had got together a lot of printing material and odd wood cuts and had the knack of making crude wood engravings of his own design.

He began to publish a weekly newspaper that he called "The Bugle Horn of Liberty" and to illustrate with his old and home-made cuts. When Morgan raided Ohio and was captured
some vagrant demon put it into Swazey's head to publish what he called an illustrated history of "John Morgan and his men."

How Swazey Rode the Rail.

He wound up the article with a picture of a rich southern mansion as "Morgan's Former Home" and ended with the commercial cut of a big iron safe and called it "Morgan's Present Home."

That set the world on fire. As soon as the convalescent Morgan men saw it they piled out of the hospital and made for the office of the "Bugle Horn."
There they captured a terrified Swazey, set him astride of a long stout scuffling, shouldered the wooden horse, and, while two of them held each of his legs they jolted him up and down Hill street in the most sarge fashion.

When released Swazey disappeared
only to return at the end of the war
as captain of a federal company of negro soldiers and to take a hot and vicious revenge upon all the persons in Griffin who had believed and cheered his tormentors who rode him
on the rail.

Other Notables of Griffin.

It was in Griffin that I first knew Colonel Nathaniel J. Hammond who afterwards moved to Atlanta and became one of our most famous representatives in the federal congress.
And there I met first Colonel James L. Boynton, a gallant Confederate officer, who subsequently was president of the state senate and acting governor. Griffin was his birthplace and Lover, were the boon companions of lovable Rush Blakely, still of Griffin, and of Charles T. Logan, noted newsman, who was killed in the war at Jersey and of Goodrich Whittier and myself. We half dozen were a hunkydory sextet in those days.

Also I recall that it was in Griffin that I met Captain James W. Van Horn, who was courted the splendid lady,
my mother's best friend, who afterwards became his wife.

Well, so long, beloved old Griffin!

Holder Charges Carswell And Perry With Untruths

Declares Perry Has No Following and Carswell Is Candidate of Administration.

CAIRO, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) John N. Holder, candidate for governor, in an address delivered here today, launched a bitter attack on two of his opponents—James A. Perry and George H. Carswell.

The speaker declared that Perry has "dragged out all the discarded, refuted and ridiculous slanders circulated against me in times past by my political enemies," and that Carswell has "disregarded the facts and the truth."

After reviewing the already announced platform upon which he is making his campaign for the governorship, Holder turned his fire on his opponents, saying in part:

"So far in this campaign I have devoted very little time to replying to the attacks made upon me by my opponents, but some of them are so vicious and so utterly unfounded that I am constrained to take note of them. One of my opponents who has been most bitter in his attacks upon me is James A. Perry."

"Notwithstanding his extended campaign, his many platforms, his long list of statements and his numerous addresses, he has not aroused a single ripple of interest. Failing to thus attract public attention to his camaign he has dragged out all the discarded, refuted and ridiculous slanders circulated against me in times past by my political enemies and is now busily engaged in wholesaling them around the state.

"I do not charge as do some of the gubernatorial candidates, that Mr. Perry is the candidate of the corporations, but I do state that notwithstanding his loud tirades against officeholders and politicians he has, for many years, held a lucrative public office and still holds that office, an office which has offered unusual opportunities for public service, yet he is unable to point to any constructive accomplishment for which he deserves the credit.

Say Facts Disregarded.

"Another of my opponents, who is famed for his vituperative tongue in politics, is George H. Carswell. Mr. Carswell after being eliminated in the primary, has vilified me in every way his mind could conceive and a bitter tongue could utter. He has, as usual, disregarded the facts and the truth."

"In a speech at Rockmart Monday he is quoted as denying he is the administration candidate and explaining that in his patriotism he always tries to support the governors elected by the people."

"It is known to all that in the gubernatorial campaign of 1926, Mr. Carswell after being eliminated in the primary, took the stump for the present governor and devoted his main efforts toward attacks upon me just as he has done in the first primary."

"It was generally reported that for his services Mr. Carswell would receive the best plum in the new administration and that he should be the next governor. He boasted then and has often boasted since that he defeated the present governor and that he defeated me.

"Mr. Carswell may now be seeking the fruits of his trade on the governorship but he must accept his part of the responsibility for the monumental failure of the present administration."

HARRIS' OPPOSITION TO TILSON RAPPELLED IN SLATON SPEECH

WASHINGTON, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Addressing an audience of Wilkes county citizens in the courthouse here tonight, John M. Slaton, opposing Senator W. J. Harris for reelection, criticized Senator Harris for opposing William J. Tilson for United States judge of the southern district of Georgia, who was subsequently appointed by President Coolidge, and confirmed, as a judge of the United States customs court in New York city.

"Senator Harris first stated there was nothing against Judge Tilson except the location of his residence," said Mr. Slaton. "Then that objection fell flat, he took refuge in the excuse that Judge Tilson was 'personally obnoxious' to him. Such methods of opposing a distinguished lawyer, against whom he could raise no real objection, should bring the blush of shame to Senator Harris' cheeks."

"Judge Tilson is a son of a gallant Tennessee Confederate who fought under Forrest. Judge Tilson was born in Tennessee, and had lived in Georgia and practiced law here since graduation. His then-lawyer, the late Mr. Roman, was a magnificent citizen and a banker, beloved by all who knew him. When I mentioned something about Mr. Roman in this connection, Senator Harris sneered at him because he was a banker. I think the people of Georgia will resent such demagogic tactics."

"I believe in helping the laborer and mechanic, and to do so the factory that employs him must prosper. I believe in helping the farmer, and one good way to help him is by preventing excessive tax levies. Yet when I appear before a committee of the Georgia legislature against excessive taxation, Senator Harris cries out that I am a 'lobbyist.' I believe that business of every character should be fostered and encouraged."

In this connection, Governor Slaton declared that business conditions in Georgia today, and over the country generally, have never been worse, and he asserted it "stupendous governmental expenditures" are mainly responsible. He reiterated his charge that Senator Harris has voted for "billions upon billions of appropriations, obtaining a mere pittance for Georgia, and never once has raised his voice for economy."

Other issues emphasized by Mr. Slaton against Senator Harris were the proposed twentieth amendment to the federal constitution, placing the labor of all children under 18 in control of the federal government; the senator's vote in favor of entering the League of Nations and the World Court; and the senator's "failure to utter a syllable against the tariff recently enacted."

LABOR LEADER SAYS FULL SUPPORT WILL BE GIVEN TO HARRIS

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 17.—(AP.)—President George L. Googe, of the Savannah Trades and Labor Assembly, announced tonight that on next Monday night the local organization would support Senator Harris and throw its support behind William J. Harris in his campaign for re-election as United States senator.

This movement will extend into the whole of the territory in this section and be carried throughout the state. Googe said that President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, during many years of public service, had been the entire influence and backing of the American labor movement in the campaign to elect Senator Harris.

In his statement, Googe said: "Senator Harris' record during the past 12 years in the senate has been 100 per cent behind every piece of labor humanitarian legislation and he has enthusiastically opposed all anti-labor measures, most notably the Parker nomination to the supreme court, while ex-Governor Slaton in his campaign announcement and speeches has emphasized the fact that he is the symbol in this state of special privileges and that he is a form and he is utterly antagonistic, as his past record proves, to the rights and interests of the masses."

Speakers Monday night here will include Paul W. Fuller, educational director of the American Federation of Labor; Geoffrey C. Brown, consulting engineer of the A. F. of L.; and Miss Margaret Scroggins, statistician of the A. F. of L., all of Washington, D. C., headquarters.

Agriculture's Needs Stressed by Perry In Tifton Speech

TIFTON, Ga., July 17.—(Special.) Basing his claim to the suffrage of the people upon the experience he has gained during many years of public service, James A. Perry, chairman of the public service commission and candidate for governor, outlined his platform at a speech here this afternoon.

Perry took exception to the statement made yesterday by R. B. Russell, Jr., also a candidate for governor, that Perry was making his campaign while continuing to serve as chairman of the public service commission. Perry said he had a no less distinguished record than the one set by Mr. Russell's father, when that gentleman endeavored to unseat United States Senator Walter F. Russell four years ago, and that he had held very fast to his $7,000 a year judgeship. He also called attention to the fact that the elder Russell still held that judgeship and that, in the event of the son's election to the governorship, two of the highest offices within the gift of the people would be held in the same family.

Perry said he was glad to learn that George H. Carswell, another of his opponents, had followed his lead in declaring that he would not reappoint John R. Phillips to the highway board, and charged Mr. Carswell with receiving the support of the schoolbook trust, and declared himself in favor of schoolbooks furnished at cost, or even free.

"Agriculture has the first call upon our best thought," the speaker declared, "if we are going to bring order out of the present economic turmoil. We must have proper marketing facilities for our agricultural products, both as to storage and finance. That was uppermost in my mind when I initiated the movement to build the cold storage warehouse upon the state railroad terminal in Atlanta, and which added $4,000,000 to the value of that property. It was the same thought that prompted me to aid the bringing of natural gas to Atlanta. I have consistently stood for light and power and freight rates for the smaller communities on a par with the rates paid in the larger cities. I have without fear or favor stood for the whole people. If the people of Georgia are ready to quit playing politics with the affairs of the state, I believe I am better qualified for constructive service as governor than any other candidate for that office."

Judge Hunt To Open Campaign at Griffin

GRIFFIN, Ga., July 17.—(Special.)—Judge John J. Hunt, candidate for state pension commissioner from Spalding county, will officially launch his campaign at Griffin, Ga., on Friday at 8 p. m. at the city hall. Judge Hunt is the resident of Spalding county and will first make known his platform to his friends of his own county.

Slaton at Elberton.

ELBERTON, Ga., July 17.—The opening gun in the senatorial race, so far as Elberton county is concerned, will be fired here Saturday afternoon, July 19, when former Governor John M. Slaton will appear before the voters. The speaking will be held in the county courthouse at 3:30 o'clock. A committee of local citizens have completed all arrangements. A special invitation having been sent to the ladies.

Thomas Quiet.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., July 17.—Thomas county is practically without local interest in the democratic primary election to be held on September 10. Congressman Eugene Cox is opposed. Judge William E. Thomas is without opposition in his race to succeed himself as judge of the southern judicial circuit, the two county legislative members, W. T. Madore and W. B. Cochran, are unopposed. This is Grady county's time to furnish the state senator for the district including Thomas, Grady and Brooks counties, and Thomas county and Brooks county citizens will not vote in the primary for that office, leaving Grady county voters to settle the affair among themselves. The lone race here in which there are opposing candidates is for member of the board of county commissioners for the Thomasville district, in which contest present Commissioner Claude Roundtree is opposed by John C. Vaughn.

Atlantan's Employment View Accepted by N. E. A. Leaders

When a symposium of views of employment directors throughout the United States on the subject of high school curricula was read before the annual convention of the National Education Association at Columbus, Ohio, July 1, a letter from Miss Irene Colwell, director of the Community Employment Service of Atlanta, proved to contain the only opinion sought from the south.

Miss Colwell wrote: "I recently wrote the superintendent of the schools here that more attention should be given to English, mathematics and spelling in the commercial high schools. We follow up graduates after we have placed them and find that these are the three things in which they are most inefficient. I think that if the various high schools over the country would make these three subjects their major courses that their graduates would meet with far greater success in the business world."

The symposium was collected by Cameron Beck, personnel director of the New York Stock Exchange, and submitted to the leading educators in their Columbus sessions. As a result of Miss Colwell's views, she has received inquiries asking for information on the operation of the employment service here from the states of New Jersey, Nebraska and Missouri.

In an explosion, the plaintiff charges, Mrs. Ham alleges that she was in Grady hospital for six weeks and four days as a result of the explosion, and that her person was disfigured.

City Will Purchase Scales for Crematory

Purchase of a scale for the city crematory and decision of the purchasing committee of council to stand behind action of that body ordering installation of an Otis elevator in the north unit of Grady hospital Thursday afternoon featured a meeting of that body.

Bids on various equipment including 700,000 gallon water bills for the water department, were opened and will be tabulated for the next meeting.

250 Persons Expected County Policeman At Jenkins Reunion Bitten by Rodent

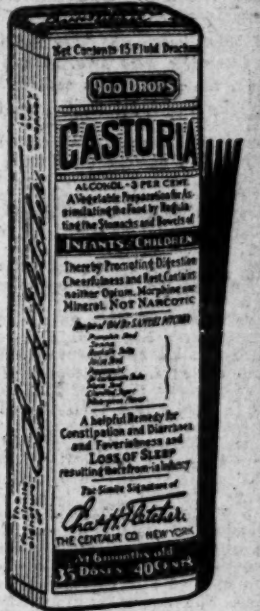

Two hundred and fifty members of the Jenkins family, prominent in Georgia, are expected to attend an annual reunion which will be held in Grant Park Sunday.

The reunion, it was said, is of the descendants of David Jenkins, of Harris county, who died at the age of 70 in 1870. He had five sons and two daughters, from whom numerous grandchildren and great-grandchildren have descended.

Baskets will be brought by those attending, and lunch had on the grounds.

County Policeman J. O. Casey Thursday was nursing an injured hand following a fight early in the morning with a large rat in a garage on Palisades road while he and his partner, A. A. Stovall, were answering a burglar alarm. Casey encountered the rat in the dark, and was bitten painfully before Officer Stovall managed to knock the rodent hors de combat.

When Babies CRY

Babies will cry, often for no apparent reason. You may not know what's wrong, but you can always give Castoria. This soon has your little one comforted; if not, you should call a doctor. Don't experiment with medicines intended for the stronger systems of adults! Most of those little upsets are soon soothed away by a little of this pleasant-tasting, gentle-acting children's remedy that children like.

It may be the stomach, or may be the little bowels. Or in the case of older children, a sluggish, constipated condition. Castoria is still the thing to give. It is almost certain to clear up any minor ailment, and could by no possibility do the youngest child the slightest harm. So it's the first thing to think of when a child has a coated tongue; won't play, can't sleep, is fretful or out of sorts. Get the genuine; it always has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package.

Hulsey Pleads With Judge For Time To Prepare To Die

"Not Ready To Die," Says
Convicted Slayer — Son
Reiterates His Innocence.

CEDARTOWN, Ga., July 17.—Pleading "I'm not ready to die," William Hulsey, convicted with his son for the slaying of one of three men the state charged were killed in a card game, stood before Judge Price Edwards to be sentenced Thursday morning and begged for as much time as possible to prepare himself before execution. The two were sentenced to die August 20.

nesday night after a jury had returned a verdict of murder carrying the death penalty less than a month after the bodies of Cliff Jones, Lige Harper and Ernest McCullough were found in an abandoned well at Rockmart, Ga. Physicians were summoned and stayed with him several hours according to county officials.

Both received sentence with calmness but later the father had to be assisted back to his cell.

Investigators charged that the three slain men were "taken for a ride" in a one-horse wagon because they were heavily in a card game in which they were expected to lose.

The prosecution during the trial described the Hulseys as professional gamblers and presented the theory that the men were shot in the back of the head while they were seated at a poker game on the Hulseys farm. Authorities said the slain trio were invited to the farm for a drinking and gambling party. Witnesses for the state testified the Hulseys borrowed a wagon to carry the bodies of the men to the well where they were found.

The defense based its contention that the trio were killed by L. E. McCullough, a taxi driver, who carried them to the Hulsey farm. McCullough, the taxi driver, and no relation to Ernest McCullough, one of the slain trio, took the stand as a state witness and said he took no part in the killing.

Bryan Grant in Semi-Finals of National Clay Court Meet; Ludolph Checks Crackers as Barons Win in Third Game, 3-2; Al Singer Knocks Out Sammy Mandell in First Round of Bout

'BITSY' ENTERS SEMI-FINALS SLATED TODAY

Harrisburg Star Is Eliminated in Straight Sets by Atlantan.

By J. H. Anderson,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

KANSAS CITY, July 17.—(AP)—Four sections of the nation will be represented tomorrow in the semi-finals of the 21st annual national clay court tennis tournament because a 100-pound Georgian would not be beaten.

Late today, with a boiling sun beginning to recede in the west, Bryan Grant, Jr., Atlanta, Ga., stunned the gallery by eliminating, in straight sets, the seeded Number one player and nationally ranked Number 5, Frederic Mercur, Harrisburg, Pa.

When Grant took the first set, 8-6, the gallery was mildly surprised. When he won the second, 6-3, it began to wonder, and the fans stayed to cheer the little fellow as he completed his conquest, 6-3, and tossed "forecast" to the four winds.

Grant, as in all his tournament matches to date, displayed remarkable ability to "get" anything on the court. He tried for balls other players would have allowed to go for opponent's points, and most of the time got them.

GRANT FACES BARNES. Tomorrow Grant is paired with the 20-year-old Texas student, Bruce Barnes, of Austin, who today eliminated Wray Brown, St. Louis veteran, in straight sets, 7-6, 6-0, 6-4.

In sidetracking the formidable Mercur, young Grant accomplished more of an upset than he did in knocking the defending champion, Emmet Parr, of Dayton, yesterday. Tournament officials ranked Mercur No. 1 and Parr No. 6 and they thought no more of the Atlantan than to rank him No. 13.

After Grant had stubbornly fought off and beat Mercur in the hard-fought first set, he was on top of the situation until the finish. The easterner appeared somewhat sluggish every time he was hit by the ball and Grant could not put enough force into his wallop to get the little southerner out of position. Occasionally a Pennsylvania would open up with a magnificent burst of tennis which would brief and when they ended the Atlantan still was to be found plugging away.

Grant and Barnes, the Georgia boy's opponent tomorrow, are ideally matched. Both are small and exceptionally fast and each believes no point is lost when there is the slightest chance to retrieve it. Barnes is the harder driver and expected to go the net against Grant since he is not so steady as the latter, and to stay in the back court against the Atlantan would be suicidal.

The other semi-final match brings together the west and east. W. F. (Junior) Coen, Kansas City, and Herbert L. Bowman, New York City. Coen eliminated another Missouri player entrant, Harris Coggeshall, Des Moines, 6-8, 1-6, 8-6, 6-1, and Bowman disposed of a near neighbor, J. Gilbert Hall, Orange, N. J., 3-6, 6-2, 6-3, 6-1.

Presented the full list of five sets by the unseeded team of Barnes and B. Adoue, of Texas, Mercur and Hall, defending national clay courts champions, triumphed as Arkansas fell, 1-6, 6-4, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4.

In the semi-finals Mercur and Hall will play Frank N. Shields and Emmet Parr, New York and Dayton.

Grant Will Not Play At Greenville.

GREENVILLE, S. C., July 17.—(AP)—Bryan Grant, of Atlanta, will not defend his title as Carnera champion at the tournament which starts at the Greenville Country Club Monday, Pete Hedges, chairman of the committee in charge, announced today.

A large number of the stellar southern players are expected to compete, among them Wilmer Hines, San Antonio, Columbia, S. C., flash, and Jack Mooney, Atlanta veteran.

Sinclair Will Pay Coach at Mexico U.

MEXICO CITY, July 17.—(AP)—The council of the National University today voted unanimously to accept an offer from Harry F. Sinclair, American oil man, to pay the salary of a football coach for the university this year.

Official sources of news at the University of Alabama have been silent on the question of who will succeed Wallace Wade after the 1930 football season as head coach. Tuscaloosa has been quietly basking under the heat of summer and not a chirp has come from an authoritative office concerning the probable denomination of the 1931 gridiron teacher.

Yet underneath the heated silence of Tuscaloosa, a mighty unrest as of a volcano with acute indigestion prevails. Alumni, the boys who pay the bills (by purchasing season tickets, I mean) are fighting grimly over the potent problem.

No outcries are heard, such as were audible during the thickest of the disturbance over the coaching situation at Sewanee. Nor has there been any wholesale and retail cock-picking in the public press as marked the travail at Auburn.

Only the resounding grunts of men struggling mightily and devotedly can be heard outside of the Alabama compound.

TWO FACTIONS. It takes at least two factions to make a good fight. There are at least that many in the body of Alabama alumni. Advice from observation posts in Birmingham indicate that each side has its own ideas about the section of the United States from which a coach should be selected. Each side is firm as Stone Mountain.

Meanwhile the astute Dr. Denny, president of the university, and his advisers are investigating the situation leisurely and calmly. Theirs is a delicate position. If there were any magic that might be worked whereby alumni would renounce the right that seems to go with each diploma of acting as godfathers to the football coach and allow the officials of the university to make the selection, it would be a grand thing.

Think—if the replacement of a football coach were left strictly to the athletic board what a royal chance there would be for alumni to stand off and say I told you so when six games out of eight are lost the first year.

It would create a most happy situation from the standpoint of the Sunday morning coaching board. But they never see it that way and insist on joining in, thereby leaving themselves wide open.

LEFT-HANDED CATCHERS. Someone asked the other day if there were any left-handed catchers in baseball. Never heard of one—at least not in modern times.

And there is no valid reason why a southpaw should not be a catcher. Three infield positions are barred left-handers because of difficulty in throwing to first base. But why a left-handed man could not become a catcher is a mystery.

Perhaps no left-hander ever thought of it. Or perhaps they HAVE thought of it and avoided it. If so, credit the lefties with more sense than common estimates give them.

If there is one position on a ball club that calls for hot, hard work it is the position behind the bat. A catcher does more mental and manual labor than the other eight put together. A catcher works harnessed in a heavy protector and mask that smothers him and shin guards that weight him down.

And he has to do the thinking for a different pitcher—sometimes a left-hander—every day. There—there is the reason why there are no left-handed catchers. How could a left-handed catcher THINK for a pitcher, even a right-handed pitcher?

TWO DUPLICATIONS. Two remarkable braces of repetitions occurred this year in two widely separated sports.

The finish in the Kentucky Derby and in the Arlington Classic was (1) Gallant Fox; (2) Gallant Knight; (3) Ned O.

The finish in the British open and the United States open was (1) Bobby Jones; (2) Mac Smith; (3) Horton Smith.

One such repeat would have made 1930 unusual. In the case of the British open Leo Diegel tied with Mac Smith and Fred Robson tied with Horton Smith, but that did not wreck the remarkable duplication of essential facts.

INTERNATIONAL LEAGUE BALKS AT DRAFT RULE

Owners Vote To "Go It Alone" Rather Than Submit to Clause.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 17.—(AP)—The International league will "go it alone" rather than submit to the universal draft ultimatum sent to it by the major leagues, its members decided at a special meeting here today.

By a unanimous vote, the club owners of the league adopted a resolution which stated that "unless the major leagues show us more than they have in their communication, the International league will go it alone."

The International members branded the ultimatum sent to it by the major leagues, its members decided at a special meeting here today. By a unanimous vote, the club owners of the league adopted a resolution which stated that "unless the major leagues show us more than they have in their communication, the International league will go it alone."

Under that agreement, five leagues—the International, American association, Pacific Coast, Three Eye and Western—were to be allowed to operate under a modified agreement which provided that only players having had previous major league experience could be drafted by the major leagues.

Heydler Refuses Protest of Cubs.

NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)—President John A. Heydler, of the National league, today refused to allow Chicago's protest of the second game of the Cubs-Braves doubleheader played in Boston last Sunday. The Braves won the game, 3-0, after the play had been delayed at an eight o'clock inning to comply with Boston's 6 o'clock Sunday law.

The eighth inning ended with Boston leading, 3-0, and the time 5:38, or within 15 minutes of the deadline prescribed by the law, which says that any inning may not start after 5:40. The Cubs knocked out four runs in their half of the ninth and the Braves' men on second and third with one out, when police notified the umpire it was 6 o'clock and the game must stop.

Star Hitter Is Hurt By Leading Hurler

ASHEVILLE, N. C., July 17.—(AP)—Centerfielder Hal Sullivan, of Asheville, is the South Atlantic league's leading hitter.

Chief Harmon, of Greenville, S. C., is the league's leading pitcher. Today the two teams met here. Sullivan was at bat with Harmon pitching.

A fast ball hit Sullivan just above the wrist. An examination showed the bone broken in two places. He is out of the game indefinitely.

Mastro-LaBarba Meet in August

CHICAGO, July 17.—(AP)—Earl Mastro, Chicago's leading pitcher, and Fidel LaBarba, of Los Angeles, have been signed for a 10-round fight during the first week in August, but the Chicago stadium will not stage the show.

The stadium corporation apparently had the fight, a great natural for Chicago, all sewed up, but Sammy Wolf, promoter of the fight, was announced last week, reached in and snared the attraction. It is planned to present the offering in one of the major league baseball parks.

Carnera Kayoes Bearcat Wright

OMAHA, Neb., July 17.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, 268, Italian heavyweight, knocked out Bearcat Wright, 215, Negro, in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout tonight.

Cadrieff "Company" An Old Racket

NORFOLK, Va., July 17.—(AP)—Several local admirers of Bobby Jones have read with interest that American golf enthusiasts have been unable to collect their winnings from a pari-mutuel company in Cadrieff, England, since the British open championship.

The local enthusiasts feared the fire this time. The circuitous describing the odds reached here two years ago. Those who forwarded money to England were unable to collect, although J. Guthrie, British consul, correspondent with Scotland Yard about the matter.

McSheehy Sets New Swim Mark

REVERE, Mass., July 17.—(AP)—Joan McSheehy, Whitinsville, Mass., swimming the backstroke all the way, won the national junior half-mile title in 13 minutes, 25 4-5 seconds, in a Boston swimming association meet here last night.

John Orlowski, Worcester, Mass., successfully defended his national junior men's one-mile event in 25 minutes, 1-5 seconds.

CRACKERS LOSE TO BARONS, 3-2; LUDOLPH STARS

Atlanta Sluggers Held to Three Hits by Birmingham Ace.

By Ralph McGill.

Sowing wild oats out brings disaster, according to the very best of our cornbooks. Red Oldham sowed four wild ones, among others, Thursday afternoon which proved very disastrous indeed. Billy Bancroft, walked by Oldham, scored and to give the Barons a 3-to-2 victory over the Crackers.

Those four wild oats broke up a Cracker winning streak that had reached the rather healthy proportion of seven games in a row. Score one more against the sowing of wild oats.

Dick Ludolph out-pitched Red Oldham to win the ball game for the Barons. Oldham did not pitch half baseball. He escaped with eight hits, but he was in hole after hole during the time he was on the rubber, and the third hole found him sunk.

Dick Ludolph pitched a typical Ludolph game. When he is right he is very much right. And he was that way Thursday. The Crackers got but three hits and one of them came from Pinch-Hitter Jumbo Barrett's bat in the ninth.

COULDN'T WIN. The remainder of the time found them up there poking out futile bats at the offerings of the stanch Barons flinger. He is a veteran, is Dick Ludolph, but his head is not creaky and he knows how, when and where to pitch that baseball. Just 32 Crackers faced him in nine innings. Oh, yes, he was pitching that ball.

The Crackers were off to a good start, scoring once in the first and once in the second. An error by Guy Sturdy gave the Crackers their first run. He had a double play on the third out in his hands in the first inning, but dropped the ball and Jack Sheehan scored from third.

In the second Bob Lamotte walked. He kept charged, close to second as Luke Appling fouled them off. Bob Lamotte was all worn out when Luke Appling finally drew a walk. Phibb disgusted at not being allowed to take an extra base, Bob Lamotte stole third.

SCORES ON OUT. From there he scored on an infield out as Oldham forced Appling.

And that was all. From that point out Dick Ludolph hit a fence in front of the plate that no Cracker could climb over.

The Barons scored on two doubles in the second, following Blackberry with one. The second run came in the fifth when Sturdy walked, went to second on an infield out and was then forced between third and home by Blackberry. Blackberry went to second on a passed ball and then scored on a long single to right by Pickering.

BARONS WIN FAME. The Barons got over the winning run in the seventh while the Crackers failed to rally in the final two innings. An incipient rally, started by a pinch single from Barrett's bat in the eighth, died from lack of nourishment. The Crackers' pinch-hitter, Pinch-Hitter Barron, nor Jack Sheehan, who followed, could help out. And one had been out when Barrett singled.

The ninth St. Rosenthal waited and got a walk. Roy Carlyle, attempting to bunt while the Barons expected an effort to hit, popped to the pitcher. Shirley Westcott and Lamotte's infield fielder forced Rosenthal. It was all over.

The Crackers have scored seven runs in five in the three games played with the Barons, a great big record series and has produced more real pitching than the Crackers have had all season. The two teams meet again today at 2:30 o'clock.

New Champion

Al Singer last night punched his way to the lightweight championship when he knocked out the veteran Sammy Mandell in the first round of their scheduled 15-round bout in the Yankee Stadium. Singer floored the champion four times.

Bryan (Bitsy) Grant Remarkable Athlete

Young Atlanta Tennis Star Steadily Improves; He Is Little But Powerful.

By Ralph McGill.

Bryan Grant, the latest Atlanta beam in the public eye, is quite a remarkable athlete from many standpoints.

He happens to be in the semi-finals of the national clay courts tennis tournament at Kansas City, the defending champion's scalp already tied to his belt, but his most remarkable performance was in the southern tennis tournament at Memphis last week.

Gentlemen who puff for breath after getting the car out of a tight parking space, are commended to Bryan Grant's exhibition of what a 135-pounder in excellent condition can do.

The southern tournament, because of the terrific heat which prevailed all week, was easily the most grueling test which could be imagined.

Tennis is not played in the shade. It is the most exacting of all sports unless it be marathon running insofar as the constant physical demand is concerned. The Atlanta champion fought his way to the finals at Memphis and then faced Cliff Sutter, the Tulane tennis player who had won before his championship.

A TERRIFIC TEST. The tournament finals went two and one-half hours. This meant that for two and a half hours Bryan Grant was moving at near top speed for almost all the way. The sun that day was setting a new heat record. The mercury was bubbling around 106 degrees.

Cliff Sutter, the national intercollegiate champion, was defeated in sets that ran 6-2, 1-6, 6-3, 3-6, 6-1. They were tough sets and in them he may have lost his mind. He took all there was out of the Tulane flash to win going away.

When the finals were done Sutter collapsed and had to be helped to the clubhouse. His 135 pounds had been reduced by three pounds, "rested" for a few minutes before dressing.

A SOUND GAME. It would be unfair to herald Bryan Grant as a super-star or as the next successor to Bill Tilden. He isn't that good yet. But he keeps improving each year. He is just a college freshman. He has all his future ahead of him. His size and his weight are against him. "Little Billy" Johnson, one of the greatest players the game has ever known from standpoint of light and skill, was handicapped by his size. He developed a perfect game of tennis. It is not impossible that the game, which he devotes himself to the game, will be the same.

He does not attempt a wholly aggressive game. Watching him last summer in the city tournament, which he won, one saw a player who simply met what the others had to offer and kept returning the ball until the opponent made the error.

He is an indefatigable court worker. He rarely goes to the net. One has almost to force him there. He has a great backhand stroke and there are fewer better base-line players than he. He has a fine habit of shooting in a cross-court shot, that is uncanny in its accuracy, just in time to score a needed point.

HAS FOUND ACCURACY. Grant's game has needed accuracy in the past. At Kansas City he seems to have found that. If it is a permanent acquisition he will probably win the tournament. He has the shots. As soon as he acquires accuracy and a more mature temperament he should rank among the nation's ten best players.

Atlanta has been slow in waking to Grant's tennis success. His defeat of the intercollegiate champion focused attention on him. And he has come through in magnificent style in the early rounds of the national tournament.

Atlanta would welcome a national tennis champion.

DEADLY BLOWS FLOOR VETERAN FOR 4 COUNTS

Mandell, Showered With Leather, Fails To Touch Foe.

By Edward J. Neil,

Associated Press Sports Writer.

YANKEE STADIUM. NEW YORK, July 17.—(AP)—A furious chunk of bone and muscle in the person of eager Young Al Singer swept over Sammy Mandell tonight and smashed the veteran champion of the lightweight loose from his title in less than a round.

A flaming youth who could not be denied by the craft and guile of 135-pounder Mandell for the past four years, Singer swept over the champion with the calm sky overhead, crashed him to the floor three times, and then finished him with a stunning right-hand clout to the jaw. The round lasted but one minute and 46 seconds.

Singer had been considered far better than an even chance to beat down the king whose reign went back to 1924 through victory over the ring-worn Rocky Kansas. Ringsiders were giving odds as the battle started that the tanned, vicious youngster would whip Mandell somewhere along the 15-round championship route.

But no one, not even Singer's rabid rooters from the Bronx, and least of all the 25,000 faithful who gathered under the warm summer sky foresaw the blazing action that was ahead.

SINGER KEYS UP. Singer was keyed to such a nervous pitch that he treated in his corner, danced, glowered and all but pushed the referee apart in his anxiety to get at the champion. He turned loose a flaming display of punching prowess before Mandell had any time to prepare for the devastating attack.

He wasted no time, danced, feinted and finally sent the champion for the first decisive blow of the duel, a left hook that caught Sammy on the chin and dumped him into the slag in the center of the ring for a count of two.

Mandell must have been hurt or was contemptuous of the youngster's slugging power for he bounced right to his feet. Instead of waiting, feinting for another opening, Singer flung at the champion, baring his teeth in a snarl as he tore in winging both hands from the sides.

LONGEST MOMENTS. The next few moments were the longest of the bout that Mandell spent on his feet. He reeled backward, overbalanced by the little kid's striking onslaught, rocked from one side of the ring to the other, as Singer sent his punches up into Mandell's head. Mandell's hands gradually sank to his sides, his mouth drooped, and he collapsed across the lower ring ropes on his own side of the ring.

Blood seeped from the champion's eyes and mouth as he hung half out of the ring, a pitiful caricature of the finely-conditioned, calm athlete who had entered the battle pit as confidently as a champion. He was down for 10 minutes before he pulled himself from the ropes as Referee Arthur Donovan brought his arm down with the stroke of seven and climbed wearily to his feet.

But he had no defense to offer against the charge of a vicious young man gone completely wild at the sight of a champion hanging at the tip of his leather mitten.

DOWN THIRD TIME. Singer swept in with a left hook that snapped Mandell's head back between his shoulders and floored him for the third time, ending his four.

There was nothing left of the champion but his courage as he stumbled to his feet for the last time. His back to the ropes across from where he took the second knockdown, his knees aches sagging as Singer hurled himself again. A left and right sent Mandell's body flying into the sagging ropes and as the little holder bounced off Young Al nailed him full on the chin with a right hand smash.

To his head he was battle once and for all. Mandell collapsed as though he were coming apart, thudded to the canvas on his back, and heard nothing until the count of eight. There he made his last bid to carry on but his muscles were cotton strands, his legs part of some other being. He managed to twist half over on his face but slumped back and was stretched stiff and cold at the count of ten.

25,000 SEE BOUT.

To the 25,000 of the faithful who rallied after the foulness of the winter and spring to take one more chance, the battle was eminently satisfactory. Violently they cheered the new title holder, a sleek, colored kid who still shades the voting age and has less than three years of professional experience, for bringing the title Benny Leonard laid held for New York back to the metropolis.

There were some boos mingled in the ovation, for the faithful, what with the epidemic of fouls.

Reserve Officers Give Dance At Fort McPherson

FORT MCPHERSON, July 17.—The brilliant reception and hop given by the reserve officers on duty at the garrison at the Officers' Club was the center of interest of the military set Thursday evening. Major Nathan E. Hunter and Captain Willis Everett, Jr., were in charge of the arrangements and to them goes the credit for this enjoyable affair. The clubrooms were decorated with gayly colored streamers and the graceful sprays of ivy lent its cool greenness. The mantel held jars of garden flowers while the ivy trailed its graceful way from the mantel to the floor. The fireplace was banked with palms and ferns starred with bright colored flowers. The guests were received by a number of the ranking officers of the regular army and the reserve corps and their wives. Among those invited to receive were Major General Frank Ross McCoy and Mrs. McCoy, Brigadier General George H. Estes and Mrs. Estes, Colonel Henry Ashley Ripley and Mrs. Ripley, Lieutenant Colonel D. M. Cheston and Mrs. Cheston, all of the regular army; Colonel J. O. Sallee, of the 326th reserve regiment; Colonel J. N. De Vaughn, of the 426th; Colonel R. N. Howard, Colonel Franklin Chalmers and Mrs. Chalmers, Colonel James Wood, of the 30th medical regiment, and Mrs. Wood, and Colonel S. J. Powell, of the corps area service unit. Over 200 guests, including members of the military set of the regular army and the reserves, attended the hop and reception.

The same evening Brigadier General George H. Estes and Mrs. Estes entertained at dinner at their quarters in the post. The table was centered with a bowl of garden flowers in tones of yellow and yellow tapers were placed at intervals. Covers were placed for Captain John B. Dinmore and Mrs. Dinmore, Captain Thomas H. Ramsey and Mrs. Ramsey, Mrs. Robert Schuffelberger, Lieutenant Charles Landon and Mrs. Landon, Lieutenant Arvil Monger and General Estes and Mrs. Estes. Lieutenant R. E. Williams and Mrs. Williams and Miss Aline Williams have been assigned quarters at the garrison. These quarters were occupied by Captain Albert G. Wing and Mrs. Wing, who have taken a house in town at 97 Tenth street, for Georgia Tech the coming year.

Captain Thomas H. Ramsey and Mrs. Ramsey, accompanied by their small daughters, Harriet and Barbara Ann, will leave Monday for their new home at the University of Pennsylvania, where Captain Ramsey will be military instructor.

The guests will include Misses Bansley, Margaret Bansley, Elizabeth McCallie, Edith McCallie, Ruth Casey, Myrtle Quick, Lamar Lowe, Venie Belle Grant, Kenneth Maner, Catherine Gilliland, Virginia Knott, Frances Knott, Mary Joe Florida, Louise Thomas, Lois Hansard, Mary Brook, Sara Slaughter, Ruth McDonald, Caroline Hawthorne, Mesdames J. B. Wing, J. D. Bansley, Jr., and Albert Hapgood. The hostess' mother, Mrs. J. C. Albright, and her cousin, Miss Louise Wynn, will assist her in entertaining.

Numbers of swimming parties, tennis parties and other informal affairs have been planned for Miss Bansley during her stay in the city. Among those who have entertained for this attractive visitor are Misses Edith and Elizabeth McCallie, Mary Brooks and Margaret Bansley.

Miss Gardner and Dr. Welton Wed at Ceremony in Decatur

DECATUR, Ga., July 17.—A wedding characterized by beauty of detail was that of Miss Leila Frances Gardner, daughter of Mrs. Lucile H. Gardner, of Decatur, and Dr. Felix Burwell Welton, of Richmond, Va., which was impressively solemnized Thursday evening at 8 o'clock in the First Presbyterian church of Decatur. Dr. D. P. McGeachy, pastor of the church, officiated, assisted by Dr. J. R. Ficklin, using the double ring ceremony.

Church Decorations. The church was effectively decorated with stately palms and Australian ferns, interspersed with tall seven-branched candelabra. The prie-dieu was flanked on either side by tall floor baskets of white gladioli and roses, showered with swainsons. Palms were placed between the windows on each side of the church.

An exquisite musical program was presented by Miss Cliff Mable at the organ, who played "Entre de Corage," by DuBois, and "Sublime Sweet Evening Star," and W. W. Leffingwell and his daughter, Mrs. Russell Young, played two violin duets, "Voice of Love," by Shumann, and "Schubert's Serenade," while Charles White sang "Until" and "For You Alone."

The groomsmen and ushers were Ulrich Gardner, Dr. William Stokes, Dr. Charles Newton and Joseph Gardner. The bridesmaids were point d'esprit gowns, Miss Elizabeth Asker wearing pink; Miss Katherine O'Neill, of Greenville, S. C., in pale green; Miss Mildred Maples, of Athens, Ala., in emerald green, and Miss Sally Fiske Lindsay in rose. Mrs. C. V. Hamilton was matron of honor and wore a gown of blue point d'esprit.

Miss Susan Gardner, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and wore orchid point d'esprit, fashioned along a graceful cape. The attendants carried bouquets of Johanna Hill roses, bubble and snapdragons.

Little Anne Gardner, niece of the bride, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samsnet Gardner, was flower girl, and she wore pale green point d'esprit and carried a tiny basket of pink rosebuds. Norman Gardner, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Samsnet Gardner, acted as ring bearer, carrying the ring in the heart of a lily.

Lovely Bride. The bride, entering the church with her brother, Samsnet Gardner, who gave her in marriage, was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, John Hinneman, of New York city. Her blonde loveliness was enhanced by her exquisite wedding gown of white satin, made with long wavy and full skirt in two tiers. A small berth of point lace finished the neck line and the sleeves were short puffs of the satin, caught with pearl buckles. A fan-shaped piece of point applique lace held her tulle veil, which was caught at the back with orange blossoms. Her handkerchief was the one used by her mother 36 years ago when she was a bride, and her bouquet was of bride's roses and valley lilies.

Immediately following the ceremony Mrs. Lucile Gardner entertained at a reception which included the bridal party, out-of-town guests, relatives and a few close friends. She was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. P. McGeachy, Mrs. Samsnet Gardner, Miss Margaret Green, Miss Ruth Green and Mrs. E. A. Stubbs.

The Miss Dorothy Stenger presided at the punch bowl, assisted by Miss Mary Davis Harper, Miss Nina Hanson and Miss Mildred Maples, of Athens, Ala., lent the bride's book.

Dr. and Mrs. Welton left for a wedding journey to points in the east, and will also go to Richmond, Va., for a visit with Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Welton, parents of the groom. They will return to Decatur to visit Mrs. Lucile Gardner before leaving in the fall for China, where Dr. Welton will be in charge of the hospital at Yencheng. The bride traveled in a green tweed suit, her felt hat, shoes, purse and gloves being in shades of beige.

Alice in China-Land

Alice was giving a dinner party. The last of the jam-tarts had been swallowed by the March Hare . . . the Dormouse was sound asleep . . . and the Hatter was carefully scrutinizing his rosy cup and saucer.

"I'm glad . . ." began Alice.

"Don't interrupt," admonished the Dormouse through his snores.

" . . . I'm glad you like the cup and saucer," Alice finished triumphantly to the Hatter. "They came from China-Land."

"No such place," said the March Hare, crossly. "The name is China."

"No, China-Land. RICH'S CHINA-LAND," persisted poor Alice. "Where you may buy anything from a baby's cereal bowl to a 72-piece service of Royal Doulton!"

But before she had finished the sentence the Hatter jumped to his feet so suddenly that he shook off both his shoes . . . and fled with Alice's cup and saucer in his hands!

***

"How stupid," said the Hatter when Alice finally caught him . . . just as he stepped from the elevator on Rich's Fourth Floor. "I only wanted to match the set with one of my own!"

"Oh," cried Alice in relief. "I could have told you that the name is PINK ROGER . . . AND YOU CAN GET A SET OF 32 PIECES HERE IN RICH'S CHINA SHOP . . . FOR ONLY $8.95!"

"Before my little daughter was born I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regularly. I was able to do my usual work and take pleasure in doing it. We were so happy when a wonderfully fine baby girl arrived to bless our home. I have enjoyed better health since the baby's birth than ever before. I am sure that I owe it all to your medicine and I heartily recommend it to all women who are weak or ailing."—Mrs. Chester Decker.

Georgia women say: "Yes—
ELECTRIC COOKERY
IS Better!"

WE recently asked 7,646 of our Electric Range customers what they as housewives think about Electric Cookery. (That was before our last great range sale which brought the total up to more than 11,000.) 2,079, or more than 27 out of every 100, answered our questionnaires—and anyone familiar with investigations of this kind will tell you that's a mighty high percentage. Some say Electric Cookery is better because of its cleanliness, others because it is more con-

JIM THE CONQUEROR

By PETER B. KYNE

Twenty-Third Installment.

Roberta smiled at the naive youth's report and entered the car with Miss Antrim.

The country through which they proceeded was brown and semi-arid, a plain with deep dry barrancas, covered with a growth of stunted sage and mesquite; yet despite its aridity an unconscionable number of sleek white-faced steers lifted their heads to gaze at the car going by. The plain sloped upward as they proceeded west toward a chain of low, bare hills that ran north and south, and gave no promise of the sudden change from the harsh, uninviting range land to the lush greenness of cultivated lands beyond. As they reached the summit of this low range square mile after square mile of smiling green valley lay outspread before them. The temperature dropped noticeably, because of the westerly wind blowing gently across vast fields of alfalfa, which cooled it in transit. Identically their chauffeur was aware of the beauty and comfort of the scene, for he stopped the car to give them opportunity to enjoy it.

"All these," he said with a wave of his hand and a proprietary air, "belong to Don Jaime Miguel Higuera. Maybeso I think two hundred thousand acres in all. Mista, senorita, you see those pueblos? For long time the Higuera family have leave here; one old Higuera he build the pueblo for the people maybeso one hundred years ago. Everybody in those pueblos work for Don Jaime. On the mesa you see the big white hacienda with the red roof. That is the home of Don Jaime. He is my master."

"You are very fond of Don Jaime?" Roberta queried.

"Senorita, I die for him. My father she die for him. One day we have been fight on the Rio Grande. Those bandits from Mexico come for steal the cows of Don Jaime. Do he steal it? I to! you he don't get the chance. Don Jaime with his men cut them off from the river and there is a fight, and my father he is shoot through the belly. You know how he die? I to! you he die in the arms of Don Jaime Higuera and Don Jaime he weep for my father die. But my father she don't care, because she know Don Jaime not goin' to see family of Julio Ortiz to starve, and he know Don Jaime geeve them big funeral, and maybe sometime on the round-up Don Jaime she sit by the fire with his boys and they get to talk old times and Don Jaime weel say: 'Well, Uncle Ortiz was good man.'"

As the boy spoke he painted a picture, and to the imaginative Roberta every detail stood forth in bold relief. She felt her heart swell as the simple peasant told his simple tale; she was impatient to see Don Jaime Miguel Higuera for whom men died so gladly, solaced at the last with the knowledge that they were his children and hence, beloved by him. She gazed across the lovely valley and thought: "All those poor, simple people are sheltered under the mantle of his philanthropy. He is the master, the feudal baron. Works with his men. Sits around campfires at night with his vaqueros, adjusting himself to comradeship with simple, primitive men and, doubtless, finding it at all times thrilling. Roberta gave a tremble on the brink of a great adventure."

The car rolled across wooden bridges over irrigation canals on the borders of a distant field Roberta saw a long queue of teams drawing mowers, the faint clatter of which was borne down wind to her. Dozens of hay wagons were loading and stacking the new-cut alfalfa hay; perhaps a hundred men were raking and piling it. The fragrance of the harvest came pleasantly to the girl's senses and it occurred to her that this valley had once been dry and barren until metamorphosed into a vast garden by men of vision, courage and faith. To her it seemed a big, worthwhile thing to have done—something Homeric. There was drama in it—poetry, too. She knew no little man had done it, and that none but a big man could carry on with it. And her impatience to meet Don Jaime Miguel Higuera increased.

They swept up through the Indian pueblo and were barked at and pursued by innumerable numbers of dogs of assorted breeds. "If Glenn Hackett were the overlord here he would banish those curs," Roberta thought, and justify his act on the grounds of efficiency and sanitation. But these peons must have their dogs and doubtless Don Jaime realizes that. Let them have dogs—millions of them. What affair is it of his? I dare say he has dogs of his own."

Assorted brown children, in varying degrees of nudity, stared and shouted at them; fat brown women, seated on doorsteps or hanging over fences in homely gossip, bowed or curtsied; then they were through the pueblo and running up a gentle slope through an avenue of oleanders, past great white barns and onto the ancestral home of Don Jaime Miguel Higuera. The dusky driver sounded his siren long and with primitive enjoyment in its harsh dissonance; a voice cried within the high adobe wall that surrounded the hacienda and great wrought-iron gates were flung wide to admit them. They halted under a red-tiled porte cochere, and Mrs. Ganby came out to welcome them.

"Don Jaime begged me to present his excuses for his failure to meet you, Miss Antrim," she explained. "He has been working cattle with his men the past two days—they're shipping from Valle Verde station—and Don Jaime has only just gotten home and is busy making himself pretty. And this young lady with you is—"

"You are fortunate to have brought her with you. Don Jaime has Mexican or Indian maids—I don't know which—to care for the house, but until I came he had nobody to train them and everything has been at sixes and sevens. I've been here about six weeks and am gradually getting order out of chaos. The guests at Valle Verde rancho never exceed the guest rooms, so your maid may have a room next yours. Do you speak Spanish, Miss Antrim?"

"Unfortunately, no."

"The servants understand nothing else. I am studying the language and am beginning to make myself understood. You have a modern bath with hot and cold water. Dinner is at six."

"Does Don Jaime dress for dinner?"

"He puts on his coat, even when we haven't got company," Mr. Ganby laughed. "In this part of Texas men readily acquire the comfortable shirt-sleeve habit."

"What a lovely room!" Roberta exclaimed, as she entered. It was a large room—twice as large as an ordinarily large New York chamber—and furnished in an old world elegance. In fact Roberta, who knew something about such things, was satisfied that every article of furniture in the room had come from Spain and was at least 200 years old. The huge, high four-poster bed, with its black and scarlet velvet canopy might have been the bed of some forgotten Castilian princess; there was a chest of drawers that made her heart ache with the desire for possession. The windows opened onto the patio, and the scent of flowers filled the room. A cluster of roses occupied a vase on the dressing table.

"Don Jaime plucked these and placed them here himself," Mrs. Ganby informed her. He was in great distress at having you arrive earlier than we expected you. I fear you didn't figure your time table correctly, Miss Antrim. Yes, this is the nicest room in the house. It was formerly Don Jaime's mother's room."

There were a number of family portraits hung along the walls, old-fashioned mementoes of a forgotten line of Higuera rancheros and warriors, maids and dowagers. "Is there a portrait of Don Jaime here?" Roberta inquired. "I have never met him, you know."

"There was one here today—why, it's gone! Don Jaime must have removed it himself, Miss Antrim. Well, you'll meet him at dinner, and dinner will be served shortly after you have tidied yourself up a bit. Don't hurry."

She departed and Roberta settled down in a rocking chair while Miss Antrim removed her undershirt and prepared her bath. She chose her gown very carefully. She wanted to look her best when she should meet Don Jaime Miguel Higuera.

NEW YORK, July 17.—(P)—

Early advances on complaints of continued dry weather in western and central belt sections combined with fairly steady Liverpool cables were followed by partial reactions in cotton here today.

Offerings were comparatively light, however, and after selling off from 12.94 to 12.79, the new October contract closed at 12.87 compared with 12.77 at the close of the previous day. The general market closed steady at net advances of 4 to 12 points.

The opening was steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 13 points in response to the steady cables and the failure of the weather reports to indicate any rain of consequence in the western and central belts. July contracts sold up to 13.01 and the new December to 13.10 on the initial demand, making net advances of about eight points on July and 14 to 17 points on the more active new crop positions. These prices attracted some realizing while there may have been a little selling here because of reports on reports of reaction from earlier advances in the wheat market.

July was relatively weak, selling off to 12.80 under liquidation accompanied by reports of a new crop report representing about 2,400 bales of cotton had been issued. Old October sold off from 13.20 to 13.06, while the new December declined to 12.98, which carried the market about 13 points net lower on July and within two and three points of yesterday's closing quotations on the new crop month. Closing prices were 12 to 15 points the lowest on renewed covering. Reports of further showers in the eastern belt were commented upon by some traders as likely to promote boll weevil activity, but others considered the reports as the factor on the advance, although some traders thought they saw indications of some showers in the west within the next day or two.

Liverpool cables reported covering and trade buying in that market and said there was an improved inquiry for cotton cloths from China. Exports today, 11,170, making 6,702,975 so far this season. Port receipts 1,307. United States port stocks, 1,503,205.

SPOTS ADVANCE

AT NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS, July 17.—(P)—The cotton market was quiet today except for a spurt of activity right at the start. Despite indifferent cables prices opened 3 points higher and continued to rise in the early trading. October traded up to 12.95 and December to 13.15, up 15 to 16 points.

The market then became quiet and gradually lost all of the gain. December made a new low at 31.01, down 14 points from the high. The market recovered 8 points after mid-afternoon, but ruled very quiet.

Late trading was quiet and prices kept within the earlier range. October closed at 12.80, and December at 13.06, or 7 to 9 points net higher. Port receipts 1,307. United States port stocks, 1,503,205.

Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston 43,535; last year 49,493. Spot sales at southern markets 5,461 bales; last year 5,542.

rescued two men who were drowning.
With the two men clinging to him, Millmore swam to a pile driver where a watchman pulled all three ashore. Millmore is stationed at the pier as a watchman because one of his legs is shorter than the other.

Republicans To Lose More Representation Than Democrats by Reapportionment, Census Indicates.

While it cannot be determined exactly which states will lose congressmen and which will gain new members, an Associated Press compilation shows sufficient states have completed their population enumeration to give some indication of the probable changes.

able that California's larger increase in population might entitle her to nine new members, making her delegation in congress 20 instead of 11 as at present.

Missouri, it was figured, would be heaviest loser, her delegation being curtailed by three members. Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky and Mississippi were

Texas and New Jersey were put down for two new members. Texas in her preliminary population has exceeded the January estimate by about 117,000 and therefore seems safe for two new members. New Jersey has not concluded her enumeration.

States senate, I will do just what Governor La Follette, of Wisconsin, and Governor David B. Hill, of New York, did—that is, I will serve out my term as governor and then go to the senate. Paul Cyr will never be governor of this state one minute. I announced that from every stump in this state four months ago.
